Yurei Attack: The Japanese Ghost Survival Guide

By Hiroko Yoda

Q: What is a yurei? A: A yurei is a Japanese ghost, typically depicted as a pale, flowing figure with long, black hair. They are often associated with unfinished business, revenge, or a tragic death.

Q: How do you recognize a yurei? A: Yurei can appear in various forms, but there are some common signs to look for. They often have cold, ethereal auras, and their feet may not touch the ground. They may also make strange noises, such as whispers or guttural cries.

Q: What can I do to protect myself from a yurei? A: There are several ways to protect yourself from a yurei. Keep a sacred object, such as an amulet or talisman, close to you. You can also wear salt or carry a mirror, as both are believed to ward off yurei. Avoid areas where yurei are known to haunt and stay away from water, as it is a common place for them to appear.

Q: What should I do if I encounter a yurei? A: If you encounter a yurei, remain calm and avoid making direct eye contact. If possible, ignore the ghost and walk away slowly. Do not speak to it or interact with it in any way. If the yurei persists, try to distract it with a loud noise or a bright light.

Q: What should I do if a yurei attacks me? A: If a yurei attacks you, fight back as hard as you can. Use whatever objects you have available to defend yourself, such as a stick, a rock, or a piece of clothing. Do not give up and keep fighting until the yurei disappears or until you find help.
