foreclosure.

Q: What are some other key financial measures that real estate investors should be tracking?

By comparing financial statements from different periods, you can see how your company is performing over time. This information can be used to make informed investment decisions.

Q: How can I make informed investment decisions based on my financial data?

A: You can make informed investment decisions based on your financial data by understanding your company's financial performance and using this information to identify opportunities and risks.
