Who Were the Drifters in James A. Michener's Novel?

James A. Michener's epic novel, "The Drifters," follows the lives of several American expatriates living in Europe during the 1950s. These individuals, known as "drifters," are characterized by their lack of permanent ties and their search for meaning in a changing world.

Who Were the Main Drifters?

The main characters of "The Drifters" include:

- Clive Goodman: A disillusioned journalist who has lost faith in the American dream.
- Edward Bauman: A wealthy doctor who has turned to alcohol after the death of his wife.
- Arthur Stewart: A successful businessman who has become bored with his life.
- Isabelle de Beauvais: A French widow who has found solace in religion.
- Freddy Wilkins: A young American who has come to Europe in search of adventure.

What Were Their Motivations?

The drifters were driven by a variety of motivations, including:

- Disillusionment with American society
- Loss of personal connections
- A search for meaning and purpose
- Boredom and restlessness
- A desire for adventure

How Did They Adapt to Life in Europe?

The drifters had varying degrees of success in adapting to life in Europe. Some, like Clive Goodman, struggled with culture shock and loneliness. Others, like Arthur Stewart, found new opportunities and a renewed sense of purpose.

What Was the Significance of Their Story?

The story of the drifters reflects the changing values and attitudes of the post-World War II era. It examines the themes of alienation, identity, and the search for meaning in a rapidly evolving world. Michener's novel serves as a cautionary tale about the dangers of drifting aimlessly and the importance of finding a sense of belonging.
