What is the New International Ephemerides 1900-2050? The New International Ephemerides 1900-2050 (NIE) is a comprehensive astronomical almanac that provides detailed ephemerides (daily positions) of celestial bodies in the solar system for the period from 1900 to 2050.

Why was the NIE created? The NIE was developed to provide accurate and up-to-date ephemerides for astronomical research, navigation, and other applications where precise knowledge of celestial positions is crucial. It is the successor to the American Ephemeris and Nautical Almanac (1855-1983) and the British Nautical Almanac (1766-1980).

What information does the NIE contain? The NIE includes ephemerides for the Sun, Moon, and all planets in the solar system, as well as their moons. It also provides data on celestial events such as eclipses, occultations, and conjunctions. The ephemerides are calculated using the latest astronomical theories and observations.

How is the NIE used? The NIE is used by astronomers, navigators, astrologers, and other professionals who require precise ephemerides. It is an essential tool for planning astronomical observations, computing star charts, and determining the positions of celestial bodies at any given time.

How can I access the NIE? The NIE is available in both print and digital formats. The print version is published annually by Her Majesty's Nautical Almanac Office
