What was Robespierre speech to the National Convention about? In a speech given to the National Convention in February 1794, Robespierre justifies the use of revolutionary terror: “To found and consolidate democracy, to achieve the peaceable reign of the constitutional laws, we must end the war of liberty against tyranny and pass safely across the storms of the revolution.

What did Maximilien Robespierre say? The secret of freedom lies in educating people, whereas the secret of tyranny is in keeping them ignorant. To punish the oppressors of humanity is clemency; to forgive them is cruelty.

Why did the National Convention turn against Robespierre? Why did member of the National Convention turn against Robespierre on the Ninth of Thermidor? A group of radicals and moderates in the convention knew they might be the next people that Robespierre sent to the guillotine. They howled him down while he was speaking and it was his turn to be guillotined the next day.

What does Robespierre's speech reveal about the enforcement of the law of suspects? Final answer: Robespierre's speech and the enforcement of the Law of Suspects during the Reign of Terror emphasized rigorous scrutiny of individuals, leading to widespread imprisonment and execution without detailed examination of guilt, reflecting a period where fear and repression were central to governance.

What were the main ideas of Robespierre? Robespierre fervently campaigned for the voting rights of all men and their unimpeded admission to the National Guard. Additionally, he advocated for the right to petition, the right to bear arms in self-defence, and the abolition of the Atlantic slave trade.

What was the significance of the National Convention in the French Revolution? National Convention, assembly that governed France from September 20, 1792, until October 26, 1795, during the most critical period of the French Revolution. The National Convention was elected to provide a new constitution for the country after the overthrow of the monarchy (August 10, 1792).

What bad did Maximilien Robespierre do? Robespierre's negative reputation largely stems from the Reign of Terror - the most extreme and bloody period of the French Revolution, where over 16,000 citizens were executed by guillotine, with another 25,000 being killed in executions with hastily-conducted show trials.

What did Robespierre symbolize? "Robespierre's politics have often been seen as synonymous with the Revolution itself. He encapsulated what was best – and worst – about the Revolution. He was a tireless advocate for liberty and equality, yet, to defend these principles, he was prepared to adopt the Terror.

When did Robespierre give his last speech? ? From the speech delivered in the Convention on July 26, 1794, the day before Robespierre's arrest and two days before his execution.

Who screamed at the guillotine? The next day, Robespierre and 21 of his supporters were sent to the guillotine. The executioner tore off the bandage covering his jaw, causing him to cry out in agony before the falling blade silenced him forever. According to witnesses, the crowd cheered for 15 minutes at his demise.

Why did Robespierre shoot himself? Declared an outlaw by the National Convention, Robespierre severely wounded himself by a pistol shot in the jaw at the Hôtel de Ville, throwing his friends into confusion. The soldiers of the National Convention attacked the Hôtel de Ville and easily seized Robespierre and his followers.

How did Robespierre made many enemies during his leadership of the National Convention? Robespierre made many enemies during his leadership of the National Convention because he claimed to have a list of people that were enemies of the revolution and threatened to release the names. Angry, people began to work against him and accuse him of acting like a dictator.

What is the main idea of Robespierre's speech? Basically what Robespierre is saying in the speech is, terror, violence is a means to an end. Our end, our goal is to establish a, a just and perfect social and political order. We have enemies, our, many of the enemies are within us, within our society.

What was Robespierre's quote? “To punish the oppressors of humanity is clemency; to forgive them is cruelty.” “Peoples do not judge in the same way as courts of law; they do not hand down sentences, they throw thunderbolts; they do not condemn kings, they drop them back into the void; and this justice is worth just as much as that of the courts.”

What was the irony of Robespierre's downfall? In summary, the irony of Robespierre's death lies in the fact that he, a key figure in the French Revolution who led the Reign of Terror, ended up facing the same fate as the countless people he had executed.

What was the stated aim of Robespierre and his? The stated aim of Robespierre and his supporters during the French Revolution was to establish a Republic that would guarantee equality, liberty, and justice for all citizens. They aimed to achieve this by implementing radical policies and reforms that would remove the remnants of the monarchy and aristocracy.

What was Robespierre's justification for the use of terror? During the Reign of Terror, Robespierre used fear to dominate and control the country. He declared violence was necessary to save the revolution and create a “republic of virtue”. Anyone suspected of counter-revolutionary activity was killed without being formally accused, tried or defended.

How did Robespierre made many enemies during his leadership of the National Convention? Robespierre made many enemies during his leadership of the National Convention because he claimed to have a list of people that were enemies of the revolution and threatened to release the names. Angry, people began to work against him and accuse him of acting like a dictator.

What does Robespierre mean by the war of liberty against tyranny? Robespierre saying, 'the war of liberty against tyranny' meant that they should kill the enemies of the republic both in France and outside France. Desmoulins perceives liberty as laid down in the Declaration of Rights, i.e., it is happiness, reason, equality and justice.
