These principles provide a foundation for understanding human nature, addressing problems, and pursuing spiritual transformation.

What does a pastoral psychologist do? By focusing on the intersection of mental health and spiritual belief, pastoral counseling can: Provide support and comfort during periods of grief, stress, or life transition. Offer guidance to those struggling with questions of purpose and meaning.

What is the biblical foundation of pastoral counseling? Jesus initially passed the task of pastoral care to his apostles and then to all believers (John 21:15, Ephesians 4:11; 1 Peter 5:2-4). Thus, the pastoral counselor follows Jesus in helping, accepting, visiting (Luke 15:2, 19:10; John 4:7-10, 8:1-9), and approaching people as a whole (Mark 2:1-12).

What is unique about pastoral Counselling? Pastoral counseling is not focused on any particular issue or mental health condition. Rather, it is a way for people to seek guidance in a way that draws on their religious traditions. It can be especially helpful for people who have concerns related their own spirituality or religious practice.

What does Jesus say about psychology? Jesus said this very plainly in Matthew 7:17-18: "Even so every good tree bringeth forth good fruit; but a corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit. A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit." The root of psychology is bad, and therefore, the fruit cannot be good.

What is the biblical counseling view of psychology? "A Biblical Counseling View" was written by David Powlison, who says that the Christian faith is a psychology; it is a care of the soul and not a secular psychotherapy. In this view, the author is no longer talking about integration as we have discussed it thus far.

Is psychological assessment a biblically supported practice? Both values coincide with one another and the main goal of both is to better help others. Therefore, Christianity does in fact align with the concept of psychological assessment. These assessments do not conflict with biblical teachings because both of their values are the same.
