WordPress Plugin Development Cookbook: Frequently Asked Questions

1. What are the essential steps for creating a WordPress plugin?

Creating a WordPress plugin involves: defining the plugin's purpose, choosing a unique slug, creating the plugin's files (including the main plugin file, PHP classes, and CSS/JS files), registering the plugin with WordPress, and adding hooks to interact with WordPress core.

2. How can I handle user input and store it in the database?

Use the `$_REQUEST` superglobal to access user input, and validate it using appropriate functions (e.g., `sanitize_text_field()`). Then, use the WordPress database API (e.g., `wp_insert_post()`) to store the data in the database.

3. How do I create custom post types and taxonomies?

Custom post types are created using the `register_post_type()` function, defining the post type's arguments (e.g., name, slug, labels). Custom taxonomies are created using `register_taxonomy()`, specifying the taxonomy's arguments (e.g., name, slug, post types).

4. How can I add custom fields to posts and pages?

Custom fields can be added using the `add_meta_box()` function, which creates a meta box in the post/page edit screen. Within the meta box, use `add_meta_field()` to add individual fields, and `update_post_meta()` to save the field values.

5. How do I create shortcodes and widgets?

Shortcodes are created using the `add_shortcode()` function, which defines the shortcode's name and callback function. Widgets are created by extending the `WP_Widget` class and registering the widget with WordPress using `register_widget()`.
