What is BS 6701? The new BS6701: A1-2017 Standard now governs the direction of where to install Telecommunications (information technology) cables, both copper and fibre optic variants, and dictates a given Euroclass Cca-s1b,d2,a2 of cable construction in the permanent installation of these cables within a building.

What is the BS EN 50173 standard? EN 50173: Information technology - Generic cabling systems. EN 50173 group of standards specifies: The structure and configuration of the backbone cabling subsystems of generic cabling systems within the types of premises defined by the EN 50173 series of standards.

What is installation planning? Thorough planning ensures that you have everything to meet all the prerequisites for the successful setup and installation of the system. Planning minimizes errors during installation and enables a quicker upgrade or installation.

What is the British standard for data cabling? All cabling should comply with British Standards 6701, 50173 and 50174. The installed cable length should be not greater than 90m. No splices or patch panels should be used in between cable runs. The minimum bend radius should not be exceeded during installation or when the cables are in their final position.

Is BS EN ISO the same as ISO? However, the British Standards Institution (BSI) frequently adopt these standards as their own, with the result that the equivalent British Standard will be exactly the same as the ISO or CEN standard: in those cases, standards will have a standard number which begins BS ISO, BS EN or BS

ISO EN .

What is the BS EN 50173 standard? EN 50173: Information technology - Generic cabling systems. EN 50173 group of standards specifies: The structure and configuration of the backbone cabling subsystems of generic cabling systems within the types of premises defined by the EN 50173 series of standards.

What is difference between BS EN and DIN EN standards? European Standards have to be implemented into the national standards system by all 33 member states of CEN as their national standards, e.g. in the UK as BS EN (in English language) or in Germany as DIN EN (in German language) or in France as NF EN (in French language).

Is BS EN a European Standard? BS ENs are British standard implementations of English language versions of European standards (ENs). BSI has an obligation to publish all ENs and to withdraw any conflicting British standards after a period of coexistence (of up to 21 months).
