

COMMENTARY ON THE APOLOGY OF SOCRATES FRIESIAN SCHOOL

Download Complete File

What is the main point of Socrates Apology? Specifically, the Apology of Socrates is a defence against the charges of "corrupting the youth" and "not believing in the gods in whom the city believes, but in other daimonia that are novel" to Athens (24b).

What is the reflection of the apology of Socrates? In Apology, Socrates states that he wishes to end his life in the same way that he has lived. "I would much rather die after this kind of defense than live after making the other kind." (38e) He would much rather remain composed in the way he defends himself in trial than beg for mercy.

What does Socrates say about the law in the apology? Citizens have a duty to obey the laws. To disobey the laws would be impious, and impiety is wrong. Therefore, one should not disobey the laws. Further challenging civil authority, Socrates reminds the Athenian jury of two incidents wherein he disobeyed orders.

What were the accusations against Socrates in the apology? Of greater importance is the fact that the two Apologys agree in many details. They agree about what the charges against Socrates were: failing to acknowledge the gods recognized by the city, introducing other new divinities, and corrupting the young.

What did Socrates say before dying? [117a] for I think I should gain nothing by taking the poison a little later. I should only make myself ridiculous in my own eyes if I clung to life and spared it, when there is no more profit in it. Come," he said, "do as I ask and do not refuse."

What does Socrates suggest for his punishment in The Apology? Socrates must respond. —Socrates had expected conviction, but by a larger majority; thus he has had a 'moral victory'. —Socrates proposes a pension for life; he cannot honestly propose a self-punishment, since he does not think himself to be guilty of anything.

Why does Socrates swear by the dog? By "the dog of Egypt," Socrates is presumably referring to Anubis, the jackal-like god of judgment and discernment who makes the finest distinctions among things in the world--and who is a prominent figure in the Book of the Dead. To swear by the dog of Egypt is a dramatic way of affirming the truth of a proposition.

Who are the three accusers of Socrates? Antisthenes, in his Successions of the Philosophers, and Plato in his Apology, say that there were three accusers: Anytus, Lycon and Meletus.

What is socratic ignorance? Updated on February 07, 2019. Socratic ignorance refers, paradoxically, to a kind of knowledge—a person's frank acknowledgment of what they don't know. It is captured by the well-known statement: "I know only one thing—that I know nothing." Paradoxically, Socratic ignorance is also referred to as "Socratic wisdom."

What is the plot of the apology?

What does Socrates say about wisdom in Apology? And I am called wise, for my hearers always imagine that I myself possess the wisdom which I find wanting in others: but the truth is, O men of Athens, that God only is wise; and by his answer he intends to show that the wisdom of men is worth little or nothing; he is not speaking of Socrates, he is only using my name ...

What does Socrates say about democracy in the apology? In Apology, on the other hand, Socrates is critical of the ways in which his fellow Athenians are running the democracy, but he isn't necessarily critical of democracy itself. Simply put, his criticism can actually be read as an indication that he wants this mode of governance to succeed.

What are Socrates main points in apology? In the Apology, Socrates makes his famous claim: "the unexamined life is not worth living." Socrates' interpretation of the Oracles' announcement and his subsequent activity also plays rather nicely in his defense against the charge of atheism/not believing in the gods of the state.

How is Socrates ironic in apology? This oracle has led Socrates to assume his highly ironic stance of confessing his own ignorance, and yet showing his interlocutors to be even more ignorant than he; great wisdom turns out, contrary to expectation, to reside in a humble acknowledgment of ignorance.

What animal does Socrates compare himself to and why? Socrates compares himself to a gadfly, who stings the lazy horse that is Athens, provoking it into action.

What is the plot of The Apology?

What is Socrates' idea of the examined life? Socrates was famous for his saying that "the unexamined life is not worth living." What he meant by this is that all of us have a responsibility to examine our own beliefs and try to figure out whether or not they are really true. Not doing this is like sleepwalking through life.

Why does Socrates swear by the dog? By "the dog of Egypt," Socrates is presumably referring to Anubis, the jackal-like god of judgment and discernment who makes the finest distinctions among things in the world--and who is a prominent figure in the Book of the Dead. To swear by the dog of Egypt is a dramatic way of affirming the truth of a proposition.

What did Socrates believe in? Socrates believed that no one does wrong voluntarily. Evil is the result of ignorance. If people knew what was the right thing to do they would do it. We always choose what we think is the best or good for us.

What is the most important part of Mark's Gospel? So, it's the death of Jesus that's the guiding principle to Mark's gospel, not the life.... Those are the two guiding principles really of the story line of Mark....
