Why Business People Speak Like Idiots, a Bullfighter's Amp

In the realm of corporate communication, a peculiar phenomenon has emerged: the use of jargon, clichés, and empty platitudes that has rendered many business conversations utterly incomprehensible. Why do so many business people resort to this vacuous lingo, and what impact does it have on their communication?

The Origins of Business Jargon

Business jargon often originates from a desire to sound sophisticated and authoritative. By using technical terms and buzzwords, speakers attempt to convey a sense of expertise and knowledge. However, this jargon can create a barrier between the speaker and the audience, making it difficult for listeners to understand the true meaning of what is being said.

The Problem with Clichés

Clichés are overused phrases that have lost their original impact and become devoid of meaning. When used in business settings, clichés can make the speaker sound unoriginal and lacking in creativity. Additionally, they can stifle discussion and prevent new ideas from being expressed.

The Impact of Empty Platitudes

Empty platitudes are hollow statements that lack substance and provide little value. They are often used to fill time or to avoid saying anything meaningful. While platitudes may make the speaker sound positive and optimistic, they do nothing to advance the conversation or resolve any issues.

A Bullfighter's Amp

The term "bullfighter's amp" refers to the tendency of business people to use language that is designed to impress or persuade, rather than to communicate effectively. Like a bullfighter who uses a red cape to distract and control the bull, business speakers may use jargon, clichés, and platitudes to deflect criticism or avoid addressing uncomfortable truths.

Consequences of Poor Communication

The use of ineffective language in business has several negative consequences. It can lead to misunderstandings, missed opportunities, and a lack of trust between colleagues. Additionally, it can damage a company's reputation and make it difficult to attract and retain top talent.
