Do men really prefer blondes? Some posit that men prefer women with blond hair because light hair is a proxy sign of youth and fertility. In reality, our sexual preferences are far more complex and contradictory. Negative stereotypes attached to blond hair are based on a cognitive distortion that sees beauty and intelligence as mutually exclusive.

Do gentlemen still prefer blondes? Lots of gentlemen still prefer blondes — and scientists with too much time on their hands have discovered why: They're in relatively short supply. Natural blondes, as opposed to the legions of “bottle blondes” who use dye, need 200 genes to create the color, the Sunday Times of London reports.

Who was the original Gentlemen Prefer Blondes? Gentlemen Prefer Blondes is a 1953 American musical comedy film directed by Howard Hawks and written by Charles Lederer. The film is based on the 1949 stage musical of the same name, which in turn is based on the 1925 novel of the same name by Anita Loos.

Was Gentlemen Prefer Blondes originally in color? Shot in Technicolor, and released in a standard aspect ratio shortly before the CinemaScope explosion, Howard Hawks's “Gentlemen Prefer Blondes” has always been the best preserved of Monroe's color films.

Do blondes get more male attention? In the first study, when observing women in black, blond, brown, or red wigs sitting in a nightclub, it was the blond women who were approached by men most often. (Interestingly, in a second study Gueguen found that blond men were not more successful in their advances when they asked women to dance.)

Are blondes seen as more feminine? In general, blonde hair has the reputation of being more feminine because of its representation in fables, stories, fairy tales, and films.

Are blonde men rare? According to the sociologist Christie Davies, only around five percent of adults in Europe and North America are naturally blond. A study conducted in 2003 concluded that only four percent of American adults are naturally blond.

How much did Marilyn get paid for Gentlemen Prefer Blondes? We learn that while working on Howard Hawks' superlative Gentlemen Prefer Blondes (which turns 70 years old this weekend), she received a paltry rate of $500 a week, while her comparatively better-known co-45star Jane Russell raked in a sum-total fee in the amount of $200,000.

Did Jane Russell and Marilyn Monroe get along in Gentlemen Prefer Blondes? When Howard Hawks saw the dailies, he kept it in the film. This was Jane Russell's only film with Marilyn Monroe. They got along well.

Did Lorelei love Gus? However, once you've got Lorelei on your side, she's a loyal friend who will stick by you through thick and thin. The few people she loves, she really loves - she admits that she actually does love Gus, her bumbling fiancée, but only to her best friend Dorothy.

Was Gentlemen Prefer Blondes a success? Gentlemen Prefer Blondes was not only a huge box office success but proved, once and for all, that Marilyn Monroe could truly anchor a movie as its star.

For example, Anita Loos popularized this idea in her 1925 novel Gentlemen Prefer Blondes.
