The Dare: A Conversation with John Boyne

Q: What inspired you to write "The Dare"?

John Boyne: I was inspired by a newspaper article about a group of teenagers in a small town who dared each other to perform increasingly dangerous acts. The story fascinated me, and I began to think about the nature of dares, their power to both challenge and corrupt, and the consequences they can have on young people.

Q: The novel explores the themes of friendship, betrayal, and the loss of innocence. How did you approach these topics?

Boyne: I wanted to show the complex and often contradictory nature of these themes. The characters in "The Dare" are all struggling with their own personal challenges, and their decisions and actions are often driven by a mix of fear, loyalty, and desire. I hoped to convey the idea that even the smallest of actions can have far-reaching consequences, and that even the most seemingly ordinary of people are capable of great cruelty.

Q: How did you develop the characters in the novel?

Boyne: I spent a lot of time getting to know each of the characters before I began writing. I considered their backgrounds, their motivations, and their strengths and weaknesses. I wanted to create characters who were both relatable and flawed, and who would resonate with readers of all ages.

Q: The novel is set in a small town. How did the setting influence the story?

Boyne: A small town setting provides a sense of claustrophobia and isolation, which I felt was essential to the story. The characters are trapped in a cycle of dares and secrets, and their actions have an inescapable impact on the entire community. I also wanted to explore the idea that even in the most ordinary of places, dark and unsettling things can happen.

Q: What message do you hope readers will take away from the novel?

Boyne: I hope readers will be challenged to think about the nature of dares and the consequences of their own actions. I want them to question the idea that they are invincible and that they can escape the repercussions of their decisions. Ultimately, I hope "The Dare" will provoke a conversation about the importance of responsibility, empathy, and the dangers of pursuing thrills at any cost.

How did Martin Buber influence Carl Rogers? His idea about the difference between I–Thou and I–It relationships relate to the difference between the medical and social models of mental health. Buber strongly influenced Carl Rogers, who was concerned with building and sustaining meaningful relationships in therapy.

What was Carl Rogers theory about? What is Carl Rogers' Theory? Carl Rogers' theory is that there needs to be congruence between the real self and the ideal self.

Rogers believed self-actualization was something every individual was seeking. Self-actualization is when an individual achieves their full potential.

Does Martin Buber believe in God? For Buber, the world is a divine destiny, a divine becoming; all beings live in the light of the Thou. 'There is a divine meaning in the life of the world, of man, of human persons, of you and of me' (Buber, 1958, p.

What is dialogue Martin Buber? 'The dialogue is not only a physical conversation of two people but also an attitude of soul – a certain ontological mystery, hidden from the others ...> mysterious communication of one person's world with that of the other person' (Buber 2001: 77).

What was Carl Rogers' famous quote? "When I look at the world I'm pessimistic, but when I look at people I am optimistic." Rogers believed people possess inherent goodness and that people are driven by the actualizing tendency.

What did Rogers believe about human nature? Rogers believed that people are essentially good and that human nature possesses a basic sense of trust in the client's ability to move forwards in a constructive manner if conditions conducive to fostering growth are present.

What is one major assumption of Carl Rogers theory? Carl Rogers (1959) believed that humans have one basic motive, that is the tendency to self-actualize - i.e. to fulfill one's potential and achieve the highest level of 'human-being' we can.

What did Aristotle think God was? God serves two roles in Aristotle's philosophy. He is the source of motion and change in the universe, and He stands at the pinnacle of the Great Chain of Being by providing an example of pure form existing without any relation to matter.

Which philosophy believes in God? Theism is the view that there is a God which is the creator and sustainer of the universe and is unlimited with regard to knowledge (omniscience), power (omnipotence), extension (omnipresence), and moral perfection.

What do philosophers think about God? Some religions, such as Jainism, reject the possibility of a creator deity. Philosophers who have provided arguments against the existence of God include David Hume, Ludwig Feuerbach, and Bertrand Russell.

Theism, the proposition that God exists, is the dominant view among philosophers of religion.

What was Martin Buber's famous quote? The world is not comprehensible, but it is embraceable: through the embracing of one of its beings.

Was Martin Buber a socialist? Martin Buber was a creative and heterodox socialist thinker. His socialist utopia was based on the idea of a new community that does not hark back to ancient forms, but wants to overcome modern society while incorporating its achievements, such as the principle of individual freedom.

What is an example of an I-thou relationship? A person sitting next to a complete stranger on a park bench may enter into an "I-Thou" relationship with the stranger merely by beginning to think positively about people in general.
