- Dynamic analysis: Dynamic analysis is a type of assessment that tests a software system while it is running. Dynamic analysis tools can be used to find a variety of vulnerabilities, including buffer overflows, SQL injection, and cross-site scripting.
- Penetration testing: Penetration testing is a type of assessment that involves simulating an attack on a software system. Penetration testers use a variety of techniques to try to exploit vulnerabilities in the system.

How can I avoid vulnerabilities in my software?
