Academic Writing

What is Academic Writing?

Academic writing is a specific style of writing used in research, education, and professional settings. It aims to convey complex ideas clearly and concisely, supporting claims with evidence and adhering to established conventions.

What is Academic Writing According to Oxford?

The Oxford English Dictionary defines academic writing as "writing associated with universities, colleges, or other institutions of higher education, typically emphasizing research, analysis, and citation of sources."

Difference between Literary and Academic Writing

Literary writing focuses on creativity, imagination, and personal experiences, while academic writing emphasizes objectivity, rationality, and supported arguments.

Types of Academic Writing

- Research Article: Reports the results of a study or investigation.
- Review Article: Summarizes and evaluates existing research on a topic.
- Thesis: A long, original research project submitted for a degree.
- Dissertation: An extended research project for a doctoral degree.

Academic Writing Task 2

In the International English Language Testing System (IELTS), Academic Writing Task 2 is an essay that requires candidates to present an argument or discuss a topic in a structured manner.

Academic Writing Style

- Formal: Uses standard grammar and vocabulary, avoiding informal or colloquial language.
- Objective: Presents information in a neutral and unbiased way, supported by evidence.
- Cited: Sources are correctly referenced using an established citation style.

How to Write Academically

- Define Your Purpose: Determine the purpose and audience of your writing.
- Research and Gather Evidence: Review relevant sources and gather evidence to support your claims.
- Structure Your Essay: Organize your ideas into an introduction, body paragraphs, and conclusion.
- Write Clearly and Concisely: Use precise language and avoid unnecessary details.
- Proofread Carefully: Check for grammar, spelling, and formatting errors before submitting your work.

Definition in Academic Writing

A definition in academic writing provides a precise and comprehensive explanation of a term or concept, clarifying its meaning and scope.
