Statistic Test Questions and Answers

Question 1: What is a hypothesis test? Answer: A hypothesis test is a statistical procedure used to evaluate whether there is sufficient evidence to reject a null hypothesis in favor of an alternative hypothesis.

Question 2: What is the significance level of a test? Answer: The significance level (alpha) is the probability of rejecting the null hypothesis when it is actually true. It is typically set at 0.05 or 0.01.

Question 3: What is the p-value of a test? Answer: The p-value is the probability of observing a test statistic as extreme or more extreme than the one calculated from the sample, assuming the null hypothesis is true. A p-value less than the significance level indicates that the null hypothesis should be rejected.

Question 4: What is a confidence interval? Answer: A confidence interval is a range of values within which the true population parameter is likely to fall with a certain level of confidence. It is calculated from a sample and is used to estimate the population parameter with a specified margin of error.

Question 5: What is the difference between a one-tailed and a two-tailed test? Answer: A one-tailed test is used when the alternative hypothesis specifies a direction (e.g., the mean is greater than or less than some value). A two-tailed test is used when the alternative hypothesis does not specify a direction (e.g., the mean is different from some value).
