How do you become an idea machine?

How do I sell my idea for an invention?

Who can I sell an idea to? You can sell your business idea to big companies or investors that will pay you upfront and then take the item to market. This form of business model is called licensing.

How do I get paid for my invention idea? Licensing Your Invention An inventor (the "licensor") authorizes a manufacturer (the "licensee") to make and sell the invention in exchange for paying the inventor royalties. The royalties can be a percentage of the net revenues or a payment for each unit sold.

How do I sell my idea without a patent? Work with an invention promotion company. These companies evaluate ideas and help connect inventors with potential buyers. They typically take a percentage of licensing and sales revenues. Research companies thoroughly to find one with a strong track record.
