What condition does Blanche have? One of the disorders Blanche may have developed is bipolar disorder. She suffers from depression and mania because she feels guilty over the suicide death of her homosexual husband and the loss of the final generation of the DuBois family and their estate named Belle Reve.

What was Blanche's last line? Whoever you are—I have always depended on the kindness of strangers. These words, which Blanche speaks to the doctor in Scene Eleven, form Blanche's final statement in the play.

Why does Blanche bathe so much? She bathes constantly so as to soothe her nerves. But this is also a cleansing symbol. By her baths, she subconsciously hopes to cleanse her sins away.

Why does Blanche sleep with her student? Blanche constantly tries to relive her youth—as it was when she was truly happy—and seems to be stuck in the loop, she slept with young soldiers and her young student in the past, and we see her kiss the young newspaper boy during the play which links back to her need to feel young again.

What does Stanley find in Blanche's trunk that makes him suspicious of her? Looking for a bill of sale, Stanley angrily pulls all of Blanche's belongings out of her trunk. To him, Blanche's glitzy evening dresses, feather boas, fur stoles, and costume jewelry look expensive, and he assumes she has spent the family fortune on them.

Why does Blanche kiss him? She leaves with Stanley to go bowling; just before Mitch arrives, a paper boy comes by and Blanche detains him long enough to kiss him because he reminds her of her young husband.

Why does Blanche go insane at the end of the play? Stanley himself takes the final stabs at Blanche, destroying the remainder of her sexual and mental esteem by raping her and then committing her to an insane asylum. In the end, Blanche blindly allows herself to be led away by a kind doctor, ignoring her sister's cries.
