Subject-Verb Agreement: A Comprehensive Q&A

Paragraph 1: Definition and Importance

Subject-verb agreement is a fundamental principle of English grammar that ensures that the subject of a sentence agrees in number with its verb. Failure to observe this rule results in sentences that are grammatically incorrect and difficult to understand.

Paragraph 2: Singular vs. Plural Subjects

Singular subjects require singular verbs, while plural subjects require plural verbs. For singular subjects, verbs typically end in "-s" or "-es." Plural subjects use verbs that do not have these endings.

Example:

- Singular Subject: The cat runs fast.
- Plural Subject: The cats run fast.

Paragraph 3: Exceptions to the Rule

There are a few exceptions to the general rule of subject-verb agreement. One common exception is when the subject is separated from the verb by a prepositional phrase. In this case, the verb agrees with the word immediately preceding it.

Example:

- The group of students is excited. (Although "group" is singular, the verb agrees with "students")

Paragraph 4: Indefinite Pronouns

Indefinite pronouns, such as "everyone," "somebody," and "nobody," can be either singular or plural, depending on their usage in the sentence. When used in a singular sense, they require singular verbs. When used in a plural sense, they require plural verbs.

Example:

- Everyone wants to go to the party. (Singular)
- Everybody is invited to the party. (Plural)

Paragraph 5: Collective Nouns

Collective nouns, such as "team," "class," and "family," act as either singular or plural, depending on the context. When they refer to a single unit, they use singular verbs. When they refer to multiple individuals, they use plural verbs.

Example:

- The team won the game. (Singular unit)
- The team are all excited about the win. (Multiple individuals)
