Why did the US go to war with Mexico? The immediate cause of the Mexican-American War was a disputed boundary between the United States and Texas on the Nueces Strip. Mexico did not recognize Texas as legitimate American territory and Texas admission to the United States antagonized Mexican officials and citizens.

Why was the US not justified in going to war with Mexico? Polk provoked it, the robbery of land, and the slavery expansion. Three main reasons America was unjustified in going into war with Mexico were that President James k. Polk provoked it, America's robbery of Mexico's land and the expansion of slavery.

What were the two main causes of the Mexican-American War? One of the causes of this war were the continued claims to Texas from both the United States and Mexican governments. Other reasons were claims against the Mexican government by American citizens for damages during the continuous Mexican Revolutions of the period and the U.S. desire to claim California.

Why did the US go against Mexico? It stemmed from the annexation of the Republic of Texas by the U.S. in 1845 and from a dispute over whether Texas ended at the Nueces River (the Mexican claim) or the Rio Grande (the U.S. claim).

Why was the Mexican-American War unfair? Those opposing the war viewed it as an imperialistic land grab, calling it "the most unjust war ever waged by a stronger against a weaker nation." And to most Mexicans, the Americans were invaders intent on stealing their territory.

Was the US Mexican War a just or unjust war Why or why not? The Mexicans saw this as an invasion, and so did some Americans. Ulysses S. Grant, an officer under Taylor's command, saw the coming conflict as an unjust war being fought to expand slavery.

Who would win a war between the US and Mexico? It depends on what the two countries' objectives are in the conflict. If Mexico seeks to occupy parts of the US, it would most certainly lose, since (as others have pointed out) its military is far smaller and not nearly as well-equipped.

When did the US invade Mexico? U.S. forces invaded Mexico in 1846, claiming nearly half of Mexico's territory for the United States. Here, General Scott enters Mexico City with his troops.

What three goals did the United States have in the war with Mexico? U.S. military strategy had three main objectives: 1) Take control of northern Mexico, including New Mexico; 2) seize California; and 3) capture Mexico City.

What ended the war between the US and Mexico? The Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, which brought an official end to the Mexican-American War (1846-48), was signed on February 2, 1848, at Guadalupe Hidalgo, a city to which the Mexican government had fled with the advance of U.S. forces.

Why did the US want to control California? The California Gold Rush Between 1848 and 1855, about 300,000 Americans flooded into California looking for new-found wealth. California's vast natural resources and booming population led to a desire to incorporate the territory of California into the US as a state.
