- Repetitive behaviors such as checking in mirrors, seeking reassurance, or grooming excessively
- Avoidance of social situations due to fear of being judged
- Low self-esteem and impaired quality of life

3. What causes BDD? The exact cause of BDD is unknown, but it is thought to be related to a combination of factors, including:

- Genetics
- Brain chemistry
- Personality traits
- Environmental factors

4. How is BDD treated? Treatment for BDD typically involves a combination of therapy and medication. Cognitive behavioral therapy (CBT) is a type of therapy that helps individuals challenge negative thoughts and behaviors related to their appearance. Antidepressants, such as selective serotonin reuptake inhibitors (SSRIs), can also be effective in reducing symptoms of BDD.

5. What is the prognosis for individuals with BDD? With proper treatment, most individuals with BDD can experience significant improvement in their symptoms. However, BDD is a chronic condition and relapses can occur. Therefore, ongoing treatment and support are often necessary to maintain recovery.
