Can you make money building bee hives? But, as a guideline, it isn't unusual for a hive to produce 70 lbs. of honey a year. Multiply that by the price you charge for a pound of honey and it's clear there are a few pennies to be made. While this won't make you rich, it can be a nice little earner, especially if a few hives are involved.

What is the 7/10 rule in beekeeping? Use the 7/10 rule, meaning the bees should have used seven out of the ten frames in the current boxes before adding an additional super. Add one super at a time for best results. It's better to add supers a little early than it is late. The 7/10 rule applies to adding extra boxes for honey.

How long does it take to learn beekeeping? Becoming a Beekeeper Some new beekeepers enjoy just a year or two of learning about bees, seeing a boost to local gardens due to their pollination, and harvesting a bit of honey and wax. This is a fulfilling and fun way to spend time outdoors and connect with the natural world.

Do you need training to be a beekeeper? Many people learn to do this work by getting informal, on-the-job training when working with an experienced beekeeper. Community or junior colleges that offer agriculture classes may also provide another avenue for learning about honey production and bee care.

What is the most profitable bee business? Selling honey is by far what most beekeepers do; it's the most common way to earn money as a beekeeper. One joy of beekeeping is having your honey supply at home, and selling the surplus honey for additional income is a sweet deal.

How many beehives do I need to make a profit? More experienced beekeepers may want to keep even more than two hives to increase their odds of success. If there was an ideal number of hives for a backyard beekeeper, most beekeepers would estimate that 2-5 hives are optimal. Of course, you will also need enough space.

What is the 3 feet 3 mile rule for bees? Move a beehive 3 feet or 3 miles This saying implies that you can move a beehive up to 3 feet from it's original location and the bees will still find their hive but if the distance exceeds 3 miles or more, the bees figure they are not in Kansas anymore and they reorientate.

How many beehives can you have on 2 acres? Generally, the best practice to follow is no more than three colonies on any lot of one-quarter acre or less (not counting nucs). Then, for every additional one-quarter of an acre, add another three hives.

But there are steps you can take to greatly minimize the chance of being stung and it isn't unusual to hear of multi-year beekeepers who have not yet been stung. You can easily find beekeepers who openly state "If you haven't yet been stung by a bee you are not a real beekeeper".

What is the 7 10 rule for bees? Now is the time to ensure that your bees will have enough room to last the summer, but not too much or they won't fill the supers before final harvest time. - Follow the rule of 7/10: if 7 of the 10 frames are fully capped, add another super if it's early in the month.

What is the 710 rule in beekeeping? Before adding a super, beekeepers often use a standard rule of thumb, which is known as the 7/10 rule. This rule says that the proper time to add a super to a beehive is when the bees have already covered 7 of the 10 frames in the existing box or boxes.

How far away from your house should you keep bees? If you have no other options though, make sure to try to give your bees at least 20 feet of space. A distance of 20 feet will allow them to reach their preferred flying altitude without interfering with you or your house.
