Difference between MCQ and MSQ

- MCQ: Multiple Choice Question, where students choose the best answer from a set of options.
- MSQ: Multiple Select Question, where students may select multiple correct answers from a larger set of options.

MCQ Format

The typical format of an MCQ is:

"Which of the following is/are true?" or "Choose the best answer from the options below."

Writing Objective Questions

When writing objective questions, it is important to:

- Use clear and concise language: Avoid ambiguous or misleading wording.
- Provide a single correct answer: Ensure that only one answer choice is clearly correct.

- Avoid unnecessary clues: Do not include irrelevant information that might give away the answer.

Why Pick C on Multiple Choices?

In multiple choice tests, there is a common misconception that letter C is chosen as the correct answer more often than other letters. However, this is not statistically supported and can vary based on the test and question set.
