Simon vs. the Homo Sapiens Agenda: A Q&A with Becky Albertalli

1. What inspired you to write "Simon vs. the Homo Sapiens Agenda"?

Becky Albertalli: I wanted to write a story about a gay teenager who is comfortable with who he is, but not necessarily "out." I was also inspired by my own experiences growing up as a queer kid in a small town.

2. What do you hope readers will take away from the book?

BA: I hope readers will come away with a better understanding of what it's like to be a gay teenager, and that being yourself is always the best way to be. I also hope they'll enjoy the story!

3. What are some of the challenges that Simon faces as a gay teenager?

BA: Simon faces a lot of challenges, including coming to terms with his own sexuality, dealing with homophobic bullies, and navigating the complexities of high school. He also has to deal with the challenge of keeping his secret from his friends and family.

4. Who is your favorite character in the book?

BA: I love all of my characters, but if I had to choose one, it would be Simon. He's so smart, funny, and relatable. I also love that he's not perfect. He makes mistakes, but he always learns from them.

5. What are you working on next?

BA: I'm currently working on a sequel to "Simon vs. the Homo Sapiens Agenda." It's called "Leah on the Offbeat," and it tells the story of Simon's best friend, Leah. I'm also working on a new novel that's completely different from anything I've written before. I can't say too much about it yet, but I'm really excited about it!
