One of the first "world cars" of General Motors, the J platform was developed for use by each North American GM division (with the exception of GMC), alongside international models for Opel, Vauxhall, and Holden.

Did Toyota make a Cavalier? The Cavalier went on sale in January 1996, and Toyota claimed lofty goals of 20,000 in sales per year. Japanese buyers, however, responded by buying no more than 4,000 in any of the five years the Toyota Cavalier was on the market. Total sales topped out at 12,604.

How many miles will a Chevy Cavalier last? There are reports of 2003 Cavaliers topping 300,000 miles with the original powertrain and engine. One mechanic at Car Gurus even claims to have worked on an engine with 440,000 miles on it. But, as you can't vouch for the previous owner's maintenance habits, expect a lifespan of around 250,000 miles.

How many Chevy cavaliers were sold? General Motors sold better than 6 million Chevrolet Cavaliers from the 1982 through the 2005 model years, and its J-Body siblings — not just from the other American GM divisions but also from Opel, Isuzu, Vauxhall, Daewoo, Toyota and Holden — made this car one of the worldwide best-sellers of the late 20th century.

Will Chevy ever bring back the Bel Air? Given the current state of the auto market and the age of this car's baby boomer target, it's highly unlikely that GM will ever try to bring back the Bel Air again, but as always, it's fun to think about what could have been.

Why was the Chevy Cobalt discontinued? The automaker never really wanted to build the compact sedan, and it showed. Critics and car buyers alike reacted with little enthusiasm for the vehicle. "They couldn't stop making them," said Kelley Blue Book analyst Karl Brauer, "but they stopped caring about doing a good job on them."

What came after Cavalier? After twenty years and three generations, the Cavalier came to an end in October 1995 when it was replaced by the Vectra, though sales continued for about a year afterwards and several P registered versions (August 1996 to July 1997 period) were sold.
