The Thief: The Scarab Beetle and the 1 CI Stone

Introduction: The scarab beetle, with its iconic dung ball-rolling behavior, has long held a fascination for humans. In ancient Egypt, it was revered as a symbol of rebirth and the sun. However, one particular scarab beetle has gained notoriety for a daring heist.

The Heist: In 1922, the tomb of Pharaoh Tutankhamun was discovered in the Valley of the Kings. Among its many treasures was a valuable scarab beetle made of 1 carat (1 cl) of lapis lazuli stone. As archaeologists excavated the site, a group of thieves managed to steal the artifact, leaving behind a baffling mystery.
